

Sara: three briefs, three videos

Our best video by far came from a creator filming at home with her phone: in its first week it brought in two out of every three sales the whole campaign made. You film three videos: brief 1 (that script, word for word), brief 2 (a new version with a boring-gift opening and three first lines) and brief 4 (the prank at a fika table or a dinner). Film the openings as separate takes; our editors cut the rest.

Sushi socks only

Before you film

Must be on camera

- The creator in their own home (brief 4: at a real fika or dinner table), face visible, talking to the camera in their own rhythm.
- One salmon maki sock unrolled by hand, close up.
- The tray opened and filmed from above: ten pieces, wooden chopsticks visible.
- A real person opening the box without knowing what is inside, face in frame the whole time.
- Someone's feet in the socks at the end (brief 1 and 2: the creator's; brief 3: the recipient's).
- Viewers must see that these are socks within the first 10 seconds.

Never

- The store's name or web address: not in speech, not on the box, labels, inserts or a phone screen. Check the package before filming and turn or cover anything with the name on it.
- Prices, offers, discounts, "free", "buy one get one".
- Delivery times, guarantees, returns.
- Claims about material, quality, size, washing or how long they last. Showing is fine, describing is not.
- Facts we have not given you. Only two facts are allowed: ten sushi pieces with wooden chopsticks; the sushi box sold out last November.
- The other boxes (pizza, burger, donut). This round is the sushi socks only: not in frame, not mentioned.
- A faked, coached or re-filmed reaction. Never film anyone who has not agreed to be in the video.
- Other brands or logos in frame.

BRIEF 1 · THE COPY · EVERYONE

The winning script, word for word

One full take, about 30 seconds at a natural pace. Do not rush and do not cut lines. Two changes from the winning video: the last line no longer names the store, and her two lines about the other boxes ("pizza, burgare och donut" and "fyra looks") are out, because this round is the sushi socks only. Give the box to someone who does not know what is inside; the recipient can be anyone at home.

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
1	0:00–0:01	(no words)		Close up: one salmon maki sock held up to the lens; she pinches it.

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
2	0:01–0:03	Det här är ditt tecken.	This is your sign.	Her fingers unroll the sock in front of her face.
3	0:03–0:05	Dom sålde slut i november.	They sold out in November.	She holds the unrolled sock up by the cuff and laughs, kitchen behind her.
4	0:05–0:07	Ge bort dom.	Give them away (as a gift).	She holds the closed box out toward the lens.
5	0:07–0:10	Ta med till kalaset eller spara till julstrumpan.	Bring them to the party or save them for the Christmas stocking.	She opens the lid and lifts one tray out.
6	0:10–0:16	När du ger bort dom här så är det som att du vet allt om personen, du visste ju deras favoriträtt.	When you give these away it is like you know everything about the person; you knew their favourite dish.	She and the friend with the box between them, or her to camera.
7	0:16–0:18	Tio sushibitar med ätpinnar i trä.	Ten sushi pieces with wooden chopsticks.	From above: the tray, ten pieces, chopsticks laid across.
8	0:18–0:21	Ja, hon blev verkligen överraskad.	Yes, she was really surprised.	The friend opens the package and laughs, looking down at the tray in her hands. The camera stays on her face.
9	0:21–0:24	Rolig att öppna och används år efter år.	Fun to open and used year after year.	The friend lifts a sock out of the tray and holds it up.
10	0:24–0:30	Dom som tog slut i november förra året, så säkra dina innan det händer igen.	The ones that sold out last November, so secure yours before it happens again.	Wide: she sits on the sofa, feet up on the table, the salmon socks on, laughing.

BRIEF 2 • THE NEW VERSION • EVERYONE

A boring-gift opening, three first lines, one question answered

Film the three openings (H1, H2, H3) as three separate silent 3-second takes: phone fixed, nobody speaks, the line is a caption our editors burn in. Then film the rest once. Our editors cut three videos from it. About 37 seconds. If the friend is a man, "hon" becomes "han" in the rest; the openings need no change. Where this comes from: the body is the winning script; the boring-gift start is the course's "problem first" move; "Material?" is the one product question people ask in the comments on her video; the openings use the three things that make the box work on people: the clear lid (H1), the box set out on a table while nobody says a word (H2), and a riddle (H3). No opening says the word socks and none promises a reaction.

The three openings

#	TIME	SWEDISH (CAPTION, NOT SPOKEN)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
H1	0:00–0:03	Locket visar halva sanningen.	The lid shows half the truth.	Put the phone in the friend's seat, at the eye height of someone sitting at the table, pointing straight down at the closed tray: the clear lid, the plastic grass and the pieces under it, the table edge at the top of the frame. No hands, no face, no sock. Hold for 2 seconds. Then hands come in from the bottom, lift the lid, the chopsticks lift one piece and it falls open into a salmon maki sock. The sock is fully open on the last frame. A hook take, not the reaction. Film it alone, before or after. The friend's real reaction stays in B10.
H2	0:00–0:03	Enda regeln: ingen säger vad det är.	The only rule: nobody says what it is.	Phone fixed at the table edge. 1 s: her kitchen table, a mug and a plate, nothing else. 1 to 2 s: two hands slide the closed tray, chopsticks across the lid, to the middle of the table and withdraw. 2 to 3 s: the tray alone, lid on. Nobody speaks, no laugh, no music. No sock in this opening; the first one is B3.
H3	0:00–0:03	Sushi till den som redan är mätt.	Sushi for someone who is already full.	The table after a meal: a plain empty plate and a fork pushed aside. Two hands slide the sealed tray into the free space. 2 to 3 s: the chopsticks lift one piece and it falls open into a sock. One take. Before filming, clear the table of anything that looks like food from another kind of box.

The rest (the same after every opening)

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
B1	0:03–0:07	Ljus. Tvål. Grå strumpor. Ingen av dom vet hennes favoriträtt.	Candle. Soap. Grey socks. None of them knows her favourite dish.	Kitchen table. On each word she puts one thing down: a plain candle in a glass, a bar of soap in a small gift bag, plain grey socks rolled together. A flat look to camera on the last sentence. No logos.
B2	0:07–0:09	(silent)		She opens a drawer already half full of unopened candles, soaps and envelopes, drops the three things in and shuts it with her hip.
B3	0:09–0:11	Det här är ditt tecken.	This is your sign.	Close up: she unrolls one salmon maki sock in front of her face.
B4	0:11–0:13	Dom sålde slut i november.	They sold out in November.	She holds the unrolled sock up by the cuff and laughs.
B5	0:13–0:14	Ge bort dom.	Give them away (as a gift).	She holds the closed box toward the lens, as if handing it to the viewer.

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
B6	0:14–0:17	Ta med till kalaset eller spara till julstrumpan.	Bring them to the party or save them for the Christmas stocking.	She opens the lid and lifts one tray out.
B7	0:17–0:23	När du ger bort dom här så är det som att du vet allt om personen, du visste ju deras favoriträtt.	When you give these away it is like you know everything about the person; you knew their favourite dish.	To camera, box in hand.
B8	0:23–0:25	Tio sushibitar med ätpinnar i trä.	Ten sushi pieces with wooden chopsticks.	From above: the tray, chopsticks across.
B9	0:25–0:29	Material? Titta, jag drar i den.	Material? Look, I'm pulling on it.	Close up: both hands stretch one unrolled sock wide in front of the lens, hold it a second, let it snap back. She says nothing else about the fabric. Test the stretch before filming. If the sock looks thin or tears, skip B9 and tell Axel.
B10	0:29–0:32	Ja, hon blev verkligen överraskad.	Yes, she was really surprised.	The friend opens the box and laughs, looking at the tray. Camera on her face.
B11	0:32–0:37	Dom som tog slut i november förra året, så säkra dina innan det händer igen.	The ones that sold out last November, so secure yours before it happens again.	Wide: she sits on the sofa, feet up, the salmon socks on, laughing.

Why B9. "Material?" is the one product question people ask in the comments on the winning video. We answer it by showing, not by describing.

BRIEF 4 • THE PRANK • AT WORK OR AT A DINNER

"Jag tog med sushi": a colleague tries to eat it

The box goes onto a real fika table at work, or a dinner table at home. The creator says "I brought sushi" to a colleague who knows nothing, and the colleague lifts the lid and picks up a piece with the chopsticks. Prop the phone so both faces are in frame. Film the three openings (H1, H2, H3) as separate silent 3-second takes: you say nothing, the line is a caption our editors burn in. H1 and H3 are filmed alone, before or after the prank, never during it; H2 ends on a shot filmed after the prank has worked. About 21 seconds. At a dinner instead of fika, change only these words: "kollegan" to "vännen" (H1) and "fikat" to "middagen" (B4). Where this comes from: the prank is the one angle in our account that only exists as a recut of old footage, never filmed with a real person; the lines are the winner's. The openings use the clear lid (H1), the box set out on a table while nobody says a word (H2) and a riddle (H3).

The three openings

#	TIME	SWEDISH (CAPTION, NOT SPOKEN)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
H1	0:00–0:03	Det här ser kollegan först.	This is what the colleague sees first.	Put the phone in the colleague's chair at seated eye height, pointing straight down at the closed tray through the clear lid, a coffee cup in the lower corner, plastic grass and pieces under the lid. No hands, no face, no sock, for 2 seconds. Then hands lift the lid, the chopsticks lift one piece and it falls open into a salmon maki sock, hanging open on the last frame. Filmed alone, before or after the prank, never during it.
H2	0:00–0:03	Jag ställer fram lådan. Sen väntar jag.	I set the box out. Then I wait.	Phone fixed. 1 s: the break-room table, two coffee cups, nothing else. 1 to 2 s: your hands set the closed tray between the cups and withdraw. Nobody speaks. 2 to 3 s: hard cut, top-down on the same table: the open tray with one piece unrolled into a sock lying next to it, filmed after the prank has worked.
H3	0:00–0:03	Varje bit har en tvilling.	Every piece has a twin.	Top-down on the fika table, a coffee cup at the edge, the clear lid on, the pieces laid out so each one sits next to one of the same colour. No hands, no face, for 2 seconds. Then hands lift the lid, the chopsticks lift one piece and it falls open into a sock; its twin stays in the tray beside it. Before filming: if two pieces do not match from above, move them until they do, or drop H3.

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
B1	0:03–0:05	Jag tog med sushi.	I brought sushi.	The fika table, coffee cups. The creator sets the closed box in the middle and says the line to the colleague, not to the camera. The phone is propped so both faces are in frame. The colleague has not looked inside. The only line that is false on purpose. It is the joke, and the openings tell the viewer the truth first.
B2	0:05–0:14	(silent, the colleague's own words)		The camera stays on the colleague's face. They lift the lid, look at the tray, pick up a piece with the chopsticks and do whatever they do. Whatever follows is the video. Their words and sounds are theirs, never scripted.
B3	0:14–0:17	Dom sålde slut i november.	They sold out in November.	The creator picks up the phone (selfie) and holds one unrolled sock up by the cuff. The colleague is still in frame behind.

#	TIME	SWEDISH (SAY THIS)	ENGLISH MEANING	WHAT WE SEE
B4	0:17–0:21	Ge bort dom. Eller ta med till fikat.	Give them away. Or bring them to the coffee break.	The creator holds the closed box out toward the lens, as if handing it to the viewer.

The colleague. Must not know what is in the box. Do not tell, hint or rehearse. If they guess before they pick up a piece, do not use the take. One take, use whatever happens. Before filming, tell them only that you are filming a short video. Right after the take, ask if the clip may be used. No yes, no use. Nobody else in frame, no other brands, no readable screens or papers.

Within 10 seconds. A sock must be on screen within the first 10 seconds, so the openings do that job. Our editors trim waiting time, never the reaction.

Notes

- You film brief 1, brief 2 and brief 4. Three videos in total.
- Every opening in brief 2, 3 and 4 is a silent 3-second take with the phone fixed. You say nothing; the line is a caption our editors burn in. Your spoken lines start with the rest. The real reaction is filmed once and never re-staged, and no opening is filmed during it.
- You need the sushi box only. If it has not arrived, tell Axel.
- Send the raw, unedited files: no captions, no music, no filters. Our editors do the rest. Deadline and everything else is agreed with Axel directly.
- If a line feels unnatural, say it in your own rhythm, but keep the words. The facts and the "Never" list do not change.
